

2024 mid-year tax facts

Tax brackets

The rates below are the combined federal and provincial marginal rates, including all surtaxes. It is assumed that the only credits claimed are the basic personal amount and the Low Income Tax Reduction (LITR) where applicable. Individuals resident in British Columbia, Manitoba, Ontario, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland & Labrador are subject to an LITR or equivalent resulting in no provincial income tax up to a certain threshold and clawed back for income in excess until the reduction is eliminated, resulting in a higher marginal tax rate for that income bracket. These rates are correct as at July 1, 2024 and do not reflect changes resulting from federal or provincial announcements after that date.

The 2024 Federal Budget announced an increase in the capital gains inclusion rate, effective June 25, 2024, from one half to two thirds for corporations, and trusts, and from one half to two thirds on the portion of capital gains realized in the year that exceed $250,000 for individuals, graduated rate estates (GREs) and qualified disability trusts (QDTs). A Notice of Ways and Means Motion (NWMM) to introduce this change was tabled on June 10, 2024. Additional technical amendments are expected to be released in July 2024. These changes are included in the tax rates above.

Dividend taxation

Dividends received by individuals from Canadian corporations are taxed based on a “gross-up” value and a corresponding tax credit. The gross-up and tax credit varies depending on the type of dividend; i.e., whether “eligible” (dividends paid after 2005 from public companies and private companies where the underlying income is subject to the general corporate tax rate) or “non-eligible” (a dividend from a private Canadian corporation where the related underlying income is investment income or income subject to the small business rate).

The following table summarizes the amount of eligible and non-eligible dividends that may be received without incurring tax in 2024, assuming no other income or deductions other than the basic personal exemption and dividend tax credit. Note however that AMT may be triggered in some cases.
